The Economics Department at the University of California, Santa Cruz (UCSC) invites applications for a teaching professor in accounting (lecturer with potential for security of employment). The successful candidate is expected to engage in professional activities, teach (including classroom and mentorship) and provide service to the campus and profession. More specifically, the successful candidate is expected to teach both introductory and advanced accounting courses, large lecture courses, design and teach new specialized accounting courses and provide programmatic leadership for the department’s accounting track offered to students pursuing any of our economics undergraduate degrees. Duties will consist of teaching an “eight course equivalent workload” (fulfilled by teaching six courses and performing a level of service equivalent to two courses per academic year), including teaching in all three quarters of the academic year; administrative leadership, execution of Academic Senate member responsibilities, student advising and mentoring on accounting and business careers; and committee work, particularly in the areas of the department’s accounting track and business management economics degree. The successful candidate must be able to be liaison to accounting firms and businesses to provide internship and career opportunities for accounting students. The successful candidate must be able to work with students, faculty and staff from a wide range of social and cultural backgrounds. We are especially interested in candidates who can contribute to the diversity and excellence of the academic community through research, teaching, and service.

The Teaching Professor in Accounting is a full-time position with the rights and responsibilities of membership in the Academic Senate and has the official title of Lecturer with “Potential for Security of Employment” (PSOE). PSOE is analogous to tenure-track. Appointees are appointed for two year terms and are eligible for promotion to “Security of Employment,” which is analogous to tenure. Appointees must be granted “Security of Employment” by the end of the eighth year of service for continued employment. Teaching, professional achievement and activity, and university and public service constitute the criteria for advancement. Appointees to this title must also demonstrate intellectual leadership, as documented by materials demonstrating that the candidate has made outstanding and recognized contributions to the development of his or her special field and/or of pedagogy, through publication (either in traditional forms or in electronic format), creative accomplishments, or other professional activity.
