DESCRIPTION
The Department of Molecular, Cell, and Developmental Biology (https://mcd.ucsc.edu) at the University of California, Santa Cruz (UCSC) invites applications for a position, under the direction of Professor Douglas Kellogg. The selected candidate will contribute to a laboratory research program aimed at understanding control of cell growth and size in budding yeast. Duties will include generation of mutant strains and analysis of cell growth, cell size, and signaling events using western blotting, protein purification, in vitro reconstitution, Coulter counter, centrifugal elutriation, and microscopy techniques. The selected candidate will also be expected to maintain research infrastructure and assist in the training of new lab members. The position will require the incumbent to employ excellent communication skills, effectively plan and execute research projects, critically evaluate results, and successfully work both independently and collaboratively.

Applicants with the following preferred qualifications are strongly encouraged to apply:
- Four or more years of post-doctoral laboratory research experience with biochemical and molecular biology techniques.
- A demonstrated record of manuscript publication.
- Technical expertise in the analysis of signaling, cell growth, and cell size.
- Experience with budding yeast as a model system.

ACADEMIC TITLE
Associate Project Scientist

SALARY
Starting at $68,900, commensurate with qualifications and experience.

BASIC QUALIFICATIONS
Ph.D. (or equivalent foreign degree) in molecular biology, cell biology, genetics, biochemistry, or a related field at the time of application. A minimum of two years post-doctoral laboratory research experience with biochemical and molecular biology techniques, including but not limited to analysis of cell growth and size.

POSITION AVAILABLE
September 1, 2018.

DURATION OF POSITION
Initial appointment will be full-time for one year, with the possibility of reappointment. Should the hiring unit propose reappointment; a review to assess performance will be conducted. Reappointment is also contingent upon the availability of funding.
