The Institute for Marine Sciences (https://ims.ucsc.edu/) at the University of California, Santa Cruz (UCSC) invites applications for the Director of the Predatory Bird Research Group (PBRG) under the direction of Dr. Pete Raimondi. The Director of the PBRG will study long-term raptor population trends, curate and maintain regional peregrine falcon breeding database, lead UC students in predatory bird monitoring on- and off-campus, organize and lead volunteer network (educate, inform, and coordinate citizen science activities), conduct educational and community outreach, and coordinate with external entities (e.g. city, state, federal agencies, Audubon Society, and raptor research colleagues at other institutions).

In cooperation with university development staff and the Office of Sponsored Projects, the Program Director is responsible for securing the PBRG’s funding (through fundraising and grants), which includes the incumbent’s salary and benefits.

Applicants with any of the following qualifications are strongly encouraged to apply:
- Experience with peregrine falcon nest entry, raptor banding, and raptor conservation
- Experience conducting educational and community outreach
- Experience with writing and obtaining grants, managing budgets, and reporting
- Fundraising experience
- Record of successful program administration experience
